TERRIBLE SUFFERINGS OF STANLEY AND HIS MEN.

HE MEETS WITH STRANGE TRIBES

He and His Followers Rejoice on Reaching the Albert Nyanza.

LONDON, April 2.-Henry M. Stanley's letter to a friend describes the journey between Yambunga and Albert Nyanza. It goes much into detail and is very interesting. Stanley, after stating the orders given by him to Major Bartlelot, goes on to describe the advance of the column. The expedition, which consisted of 289 officers and men, started from Yambunga on June 28th, 1887. On the first day the expedition marched twelve miles along the river bank to Yankarde. On the approach of he column the natives set fire to their villages and under cover of the smoke attacked the pi-oneers. A skirmish followed, lasting fifteen

During the next six days the expedition marched inland in an easterly direction through a densely populated district. The natives used every art known to them to molest and impede the advance of the party, but, al-

SEVERAL CONFLICTS TOOK PLACE, Stanley did not lose a man. Finally, per-ceiving that the path he had been following was taking him out of his proper course, Stanley struck out toward the northeast and again reached the river on July 5th.

From that date until October 18th he followed the left bank of the Aurawhimi. After seventeen days of continuous marching the expedition halted for one day's rest.
On August 1st the first death occurred, the cause being dysentery. So far, for thirty-four days, the course had been singularly success ful. The party now entered a wild country in their nine days' march through which their sufferings multiplied and several deaths oc-curred. On August 13th, on arriving at Airsibba, the natives presented a bold front and the party lost five men

FROM POISONED ARROWS Lieutenant Stains was wounded below the heart and suffered greatly, but he recovered. On August 31st, the expedition met a party of Mangemas, and their misfortunes began on Stanley writes that he had taken the Congo route to avoid the Arabs, who would tempt his men. Within three days of this unfortunate meeting twenty-six men deserted. What Stanley describes as an awful month began on September 1st. Leaving the station of the Arab Chief Ugarrava, when the expedition numbered 263' men, having lost sixty-six by desertion and death, and having left fifty-six sick with Ugarrava. The march led to the Arab settlements, Kalinga Longa. The men lived on wild fruits, fungi and nuts. Before reaching Kalinga Longa, Stanley lost fifty-five men through starvation and desertion. A slave owner at Kalinga Longa named Abedsalim, did his utmost to ruin the expedition, short of open hostilities. He insisted upon purchasing rifles, ammunition and clothing,

OUT OF THE WILDERNESS. Stanley continued: "Our sufferings termi hated at Ibwiri and we were beyond the reach of the destroyers. We were on virgin soil in a populous region abounding with food and we ourselves were mere skeletons. From 289 persons we now numbered 174. Several of the party, seeming to have no hope of life, left. A halt was, therefore, ordered for the purpose of recuperating, and hitherto our people were skeptical of what we told them. The suffering had been so awful, the calamithat they refused to believe that by and by we and Emin Pacha. They had turned a deaf ear to our prayers and entreaties. For DRIVEN BY HUNGER AND SUFFERING. they sold their rifles and equipments for a few ears of Indian corn, deserted with no ammu-nition and became altogether demoralized. Perceiving that mild punishment would be of no avail, I resorted to the death penalty, and two of the worst cases were hanged in the presence of us all. We halted for thirteen days at Ibwiri, revelling on fowls, goats, bananas, corn, yams, &c. The supplies were inexhaustible and our people glutted them-selves with such effect that we had 173 sleek and robust men. One had been killed with an arrow; and when we started for Albert Nyanza on November 25th, we were still 126 miles from Lake Given Float. Distance seemed nothing. On December 2d, we sighted an open country from the top of a ridge connected with Mount Pisgah, which was so named from our first view of the Con December 5th we emerged upon the plains, leaving the deadly and gloomy forest behind us.

"After one hundred and sixty days of continuous gloom we saw the light of the broad: beautiful. We thought we had never seen the grass so green or the country so lovely. The men literally leaped and yelled with joy, and raced over the ground with their burdens. Ah, this was the old spirit of former expeditions, successfully completed and all suddenly revived. We betide the native aggressor whom we may meet. However power ful, with such a spirit, the men will fling themselves upon him like wolves on a sheep. Numbers will not be considered. It was the eternal forest that had made them the abject, slavish creatures so brutally plundered by Arab slaves at Kalinga Longa.

A FIGHT WITH THE NATIVES.

On the ninth we entered the country of the powerful Chief Mazamboni. The villages Ah, this was the old spirit of former expedi-were scattered so thickly that no road, except through them, could be found. The natives sighted us, but we were prepared and we seized a hill, as soon as we arrived in the centre of the mass of villages and built a zareba as fast as bill hooks could cut brush wood. The war cries were terrible from hill to hill, pealing across the intervaling valleys. The people with him, also across the intervening valleys. The people gathered in hundreds at every point, with war horns and drums announcing a struggle. After a slight skirmish, euding in our capturing a lot had safely left Ugarrowas for Yamburga

Here Stanley parrates how negotiations with the na ives failed, Mazamborn declining the peace offering, and how a detachment of forty-six persons, led by Licutenant Stairs and another of thirty, under command of Mr. Jeppson, with sharpshooters, left the zareba, and assaulted and carried the villages, driving the natives into a general ront.

The march was resumed on the 12th. There were constant little fights all along the route.

"On the afternoon of the 13th." says Stanley, "we sighted the Nyanza, with Kavalli, the objective point of the expedition, six miles off.

I had told the men to prepare to see the Nyanza. They murmured and doubted, saying, 'Why does master continully talk this way? The Nyanza, indeed!' When they saw the Nyanza below them many CAME TO KISS MY HANDS.

We were now at an altitude of 5,200 feet above the sea level, with the Albert Nyanza 2,900 feet below in one degree twenty minutes. rapped for about six miles south of this posi-tion and right across to the eastern shore. Every dent in its low flat shore was visible, and traced

LIKE A SILVER SNAKE ON DARK GROUND, Albert Nyanza from the southwest. After a short halt to enjoy the prospect, we commenced the ragged and stony descent. Be-fore the rear guard had descended one hundred feet natives from the plateau poured after them, keeping the rear guard busy until within a few hundred feet of the Nyanza plain. We camped at the foot of the plateau plain. We camped at the foot of the plateau wall Aneroids, rearing 2.500 feet above the sea level. A night attack was made, but the sentries sufficed to drive our assailants off. We afterwards approached the village of Kakongo, situated on the southwest corner of Albert lake. Three hours were spent by us in attempting to make friends, but we signally failed. They would not allow us to go to the lake, because we night frighten their cattle. They would not exchange the hand of brotherhood because they never HEARD OF ANY GOOD PROPLE coming from the west side of the lake. They would not accept any present from us, because they did not know who we were, but they would give us water to drink, and would show us the road up to Nyam Sassic. From these singular people we learned that they had heard that there was a white man at Unyoro, but they had never heard of any white men being or had never heard of any white men being on the west side, nor had they ever seen steamers on the lake. There was no excuse for quarrelling. The people were civil enough, but they did not want us near them. We, therefore, were shown a path and fol-lowed it for miles. We camped about half a mile from the lake and then began to consider our position with the light thrown upon it by the conversation with Kakongo natives.

My courier from Zanzibar had evidently not arrived, or Emin Pasha with his two steamers would have paid the southwest side of the lake a visit to PREPARE THE NATIVES FOR OUR COMING. My boat was at Kilonga Longa, one hundred and ninety miles distant, and there was no canoe obtainable. To seize a canoe with the excuse of a quarrel, my conscience would not permit. There was no tree any where of size sufficient to make canoes. Wadelie was a terrible distance for an expedition so reduced. We had used five cases of cartridges in five days The men were absolutely naked and were so weak that they were unable to carry the boat. Stanley was, therefore, obliged to leave the boat, together with 700 loads of goods at Kalinga Louga, under the care of Surgeon Parke and Captain Nelson, the latter of whom was unable to march. After a twelve days journey the party on November 12th reached lbwiri. The Arab devastation, which had reached within a few miles of Ibwiri, was so thorough that not a native hut was left standing between Ugarrava and Icwiri and what the Arabs did not destroy the elephants destroyed, turning the whole region into horrible wilderness.

Sighting on the plain. A month of such fighting must exhaust our stock. There was no plan suggested that was feasible, except to retreat to libwiri, build a fort, send a party back to Kilonga Longas for the boat, store up every load in the fort, not conveyable, and leave a garison in the fort to hold it; then march back to Albert lake and send a boat in search of Emin Pasha. This was the plan which, after a lengthy discussion with the officers I resolved upon. On the fifteenth we began the night march, and by ten a. m. on the six-teenth, we had aigned the crest of the plateau one more, Kakonho's natives having persistenthy we were in libid our one more, Kakonho's natives having persistenthy and the plain. Out of thirty-eight sick men in their charge only eleven men were brought to the fort. The rest had

Soon after his departure I was attacked by gastritis and an analysis of the arm of the arm of the sent the s dejarture I was attacked by gastritis and an abcess on the arm. After a month's careful nursing by Parke, I recovered, and set out again for Albert Nyanza, on April 2d, accompanied by Jeppson and Parke. Nelso was appointed commandant of Fort Bodo in our absence, with a garrison of forty-three men and boys. On April 26th we arrived in the Mozambina country again. This time, after solicitation, Mozambina decided to

MAKE A BLOOD BROTHERHOOD with me. His axample was followed by all the other chiefs as far as Nyanza. Every difficulty seemed now to be removed. Food was supplied gratis, cattle, goats, sheep and fowls ple lived royally. When one day's march from Nyanza, the natives came from Kavali and said that a white man, named Malejja had given their chief a black packet to give me, his son. Would I follow them, they asked

Yes, tomorrow," I answered, "and if your words are true, I will make you rich,"

They remained with us that night, telling us wonderful stories about big ships, as large as islands, filled with men, etc., which left no doubt in our minds that

THE WHITE MAN WAS EMIN PASHA.

The next day March brought us to Chief Kavali. After a while he handed me a note from Emin Pasha, covered with a strip of black American oil cloth. The note was to the effect that as there had been a native the effect that as there had been a native rumor that a white man had been seen at the south end of the lake, he had gone in a steamer to make inquiries, but had been unable to obtain reliable information. He begged me to remain where I was until he could communicate with me. Next day, April 23d, Jeppson was dispatched with a strong force to take the hoat to Nyanza. On the 26th the boat's crew sighted Mawa station, the southernmost belonging to the pasha. Jeppson was there received by the Egyptian garrison. The boat's crew say that Egyptian garrison. The boat's crew say that they were embraced one by one, and that they ing state. Nearly ten acres were under cultivation. One crop of Indian corn had been harvested and was in the granary. On the 16th I left for Bodo with III Zanzibarians and 101 of Emin's people. Lieutenant Stairs was appointed commandant of the fort. Captain Nelson was second in command, and Surgeon Parke was medical officer. The garrison consisted of fifty-nine rifles. I thus deprived myself of all my officers in order not to be encumbered with baggage, provisions and medicines, which would have to be taken if accompanied by Europeans. On June 24, we reached Kalingue Longa, and on July 19, Ugarrewas. Later, the station was deserted, Ugarrewas, having gathered as much food as he could obtain from the district, had proceeded down the river about three months before. On leaving fort Bodo, I had loaded every carrier with sixty pounds of ing state. Nearly ten acres were under cultihad loaded every carrier with sixty pounds of eorn, so that we were able to pass through the wilderness unscathed. Passing on down the river as fast as we could, daily expecting to meet couriers, who had been stimulated to exert themselves for a reward of ten pounds per head, or the major himself.

LEADING AN ARMY OF CARRIERS.

We indulged ourselves in pleasing anticipated as we neared the goal. On August 10th, we overtook Mgarrowas with an immense flotilla of fifty-seven cances, and to our wonder our carriers, now reduced to seventeen, who related an awful story of THEIR BREADTH ESCAPES AND TRAGIC SCENES.

Three had been slain, two were still feeble rom wounds, all except five bore on their bodies the scars of arrow wounds. A week later, August 17th, we met the rear column of the expelition at Bunalza. There was a white man at the gate of the stockade who, at first, I thought was Jamieson. A nearer view evealed the features of Bonney, who left the medical service of the army to accompany us.
"Well, my dear Bonney, where is the major?" I asked.
"HE IS DEAD, SIR."

"He is dead, sir-shot by Manyema about a

"He is dead, sir—shot by Manyema about a month ago," replied Bonney.
"Good God," I cried. "And Jamieson?"
"He has gone to Stanley Falls to try to get more men from Tippo Tibb."
"And Troup?"
"Troup has gone home invalided."
"Well, where is Ward?"
"Ward is at Bangala."
"Heaven alive! Then you are the only one here."

After describing what a wreck he found the rear column to be, Stanley complains of the officers at Yambuya too readily accepting the deserter's report of his death and sending his personal kit, medicines, etc., down the Congo, leaving him naked of necessaries for his return to Emin.

"By accident," he says, "two hats, a fair pair of boots and a flannel jacket were left, a truly African kit with which to return." WHAT HAD BEEN ACCOMPLISHED. The letter then proceeds to summarize what had been accomplished. Stapley says: "We were one hundred and sixty days in the forest, one continuous, unbroken, compact forest. Grass land was traversed by us in eight days. The limits of the forest along the edge of the grass land are well marked. We saw it extending northeasterly, with its curves, bays and capes just like the seashore. Southwesterly it preserves the same charactor. North and south the forest area extends from Nyarzaiye to the southern borders of Monbutter. East and west it embraces all from ithe Congo at the worth of Armying. the forest, one continuous, unbroken, com-Monbutter. East and west it embraces all from jthe Congo at the mouth of Aruwimi to about east longitude 39 degrees, latitude forty degrees. How far west beyond the Congo the forest reaches I do not know. The superficial extent of the tract described, totally covered by forest, is 246,000 square miles. North of the Congo, between Upoto and Aurawimi, the forest embraces another 20,000 square miles. Between Yambuya and Nynza we came across five distinct languages. The land slopes gently from the crest of the plateau about Nyanza down to the Congo river from an altitude of 5,500 to 140 feet above the sea. North and south of our track, through the North and south of our track, through the grass land, the fall of the land was much broken by GROUPS OF CONES, or isolated mountain ridges. To the north-west is no land higher than about 6,000 feet above the sca, but bearing 215 degrees magnetic. At a distance of fifty miles from our netic. At a distance of fifty miles from our camp on the Nyanza, we saw a towering mountain, its summit covered with snow, probably 17,000 feet or 18,000 feet above the sea. It is called Ruevenzori, and will prove a rival to Kilimanjaro. I am not sure that it may not prove to be Gordon Bennett mountain, in Gambaragara, but there are two reasons for doubting it to be the same. First, it is a little too far west for the position of the latter as given by me in 1876. Secondly, we saw no snow on Gordon Bennett. I have met only three natives who have seen the lake toonly three natives who have seen the lake toward the south. They agree that it is large, but not so large as the Albert Nyanza.

AS TO EMIN PASHA.
"Before closing let me touch more largely pon the subject which brought me here, viz. Emin Pasha. He has two battalions of regulars, the first consisting of about 750 rifles and the second of 640 men. Besides these bat-talions he has quite a respectable force of rregulars, sailors, artisans, clerks and servants. Altogether,' Emin said, 'if I consent to go away from here, we shall have about 8,000 peo ple with us.'

"Were I in your place I would not hesitate a moment, or be for a second in doubt what to What you say is quite true, but we have such a large number of women and children -probably 10,000 people altogether. How can they all be brought out of here? We shall they all be brought out of here? We shall want a number of carriers."

"Carriers for what?" I asked.
"For the women and children. You surely would not leave them, as they cannot travel."
"The women must walk. It will do them more good than harm. As for the little children load them onto donkeys. Then you have about 200. Your people will not travel very far the first month, but little by little, they will get accustomed to it. Our Zanzibar women crossed Africa on my second expedition. Why can't black women do the same. We have no fear of them. They will do better than the men."

"They would require vast provisions for the "True, but you have thousands of cattle, I believe. Those will furnish beef, and the countries through which we pass must furnish the grain food."

"Well, we will debar further talk until to-THE EXTRACTS REVEAL ENOUGH for you to understand the position. I left Jeppsen thirteen Soudanese and sent a message to be read to the troops, as the pasha requested. Everything else is left until I return with the united expedition to Nyanza within with the difficed expectation to Nyanza within two months. The pasha proposed to visit Fort Bodo, taking Jeppsen with him. At Fort Bode I have left instructions to the officers to destroy the fort and accompany the pasha to Nyanza. I hope to meet them all again on the Nyanza, as I intend making a short trip to Nyanza along a new route.

A TRAGEDY AT STONE MOUNTAIN An Unknown Man Found Dead Beside the Railroad Track - A Well-Known Young Man Under Arrest, STONE MOUNTAIN, April 2 .- [Special.]-Veal's hall has been converted into a morgue, in which there reposes the horribly mutilated remains of an unknown man who was cruelly and brutally assassinated in this place last night.

In the county jail at Decatur a young man well known in Gwinnett county walks his cell floor tonight charged with the murder. Upon his coat, his breeches and his hat are the unmistakable stains of blood which are supposed to have come from the veins of the missiles of death. The prisoner is A. D. Reviere.

But who is the dead man? That is a question which was asked a thousand times yesterday by almost as many different tongues.

The tragedy is veiled in mystery and has many peculiar features. Necessarily there were many theories, too, but apart from the fact that a murder had been committed and a young man has been arrested charged with the crime, nothing definite has been ascertained.

A STRANGER IN THE CITY. On Friday last a stranger entered the King hotel, and walking up to the register picked up a pen. Upon a line he wrote Charles Thempson, Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Meador was in the hotel at the time and observed that the stranger appeared to hesitate while writing the name. Later, on glancing over the register, Mr. Meador noticed that the first letter of the surname was more of an F than a T.

Now it is supposed that the man did not in-tend to write Thompson when he began the first letter of the name.

Soon after registering the stranger opened a conversation with the proprietor of the hotel. He was well dressed, and talked like a man well posted in daily events. He wore a diag-onal suit of black and a colored shirt. He appeared to be about five feet, ten inches tall and to weigh about one hundred and eighty pounds. Mr. Meador, in making his estimate of the man, booked him in his mind as a commercial traveler. The stranger made many inquiries about the business men of town, and finally

"Can'you tell me where I can have a fifty dolar note changed?"

"I suppose most any of the merchants can do it for you," answered the hotel man. Whether the man had a note changed or not does not appear, but he remained in this place until Sunday and on that day

ATTENDED A REVIVAL MEETING. During his stay he did not attract any par-ticular attention, and if his death had not been accomplished, he would have, in all probabil-it, been soon forgotten. On Sunday night two strangers were seen upon the street together in Conyers. One of them has since been identified as the dead man. While it is equally certain that the prisoner is the other. On Monday the two men moved around in Conyers entering stores and banks generally. They were seen by the officors and generally. They were seen by the officors and were carefully scrutinized by Marshal Austin and his deputy, C. B. Smith. The scrutiny was induced by an advertisement in the Conyers paper of a balloon ascension on the first. The two men were strangers in the city and every body believed that they were the accounts.

No one seemed to remember that the advertisement might be an April fool joke. On Monday afternoon when the passenger train from Augusta reached Conyers the two men were at the depot. One of them-the prisoner-was carrying a small satchel suspended from his shoulder by a strap. When the train left Conyers, the two men were on it and when it reached Clarkston they got off. This was about 5 o'clock. As the train rolled away from Clarkston the two men were standing upon the depot platform. They remained there a few minutes and then crossing the streets entered Mr. Talton's store. "Can you change a bill for me?" asked the NOT POPULAR IN CLARKSTON.

The merchant did not admire the appear ance of the two men and stated that he could not accommodate them. They left his store and crossing another street, went into H. A. Jolly's place. Mr. Jolly was busy and at a glance took the men to be drummers. "Is there any place we can get supper?"

sked one of the men. Mr. Jolly informed them that he could accommodate them at his house. The men re-mained around the store while Mr. Jolly went o his home to have supper prepared for them. During Mr. Jolly's absence the two men conversed with his clerk. They both seemed lively, and were quite inquisitive, as well as bserving. While one engaged the clerk in conversation, the other appeared to be taking tock, as it were. Finally the man who is now prisoner said to the clerk: 'I see that Echols came clear." "Yes," answered the clerk.

"What is the general opinion about it," sked the man. The clerk gave the desired information, and for a second there was a silence. Then the man said: "That was a good joke the police commis-sioners got off on Connolly." "What was that?" asked the clerk.

"Oh, it was in THE CONSTITUTION this orning. Didn't you see it?" "I did not," answered the clerk. The man then recounted the joke which the oard of police commissioners played upon the chief immediately after his re-election last Saturday. In a short time Mr. Jolly returned to the store and informed the men that their supper was ready.

They were escorted to the house where they ate heartily. After supper they returned to the store and the man who is now dead proffered a ten dollar note in payment.

"Have you nothing smaller," asked Mr. The other man handed out a five and paid the bill.

The men lingered around the store a whileand then walked towards the depot. This was a short time before the accommodation train was due. During his conversation with the men Mr. Jolly in some way had his suspicions aroused and began watching them. From his store door he could see them standing upon

They both glanced at Mr. Jelly as he came up and then one continued on Fifth Page Third Column. at Mr. Jolly as he came up, and then one walked away from the depot, crossing the

But Mr. Jolly does not remember which on walked away. In a few minutes the accommodation train rolled in and THE MAN STANDING upon the platform got aboard. His companion however, was not seen to enter the train.

And there is mighty strong evidence that he was not upon it. Soon after the train left Clarkston Conduc tor Boyd went into the coach where his passen-ger was sitting. The conductor had seen him get on and had seen no one else get aboard. As he entered the coach he noticed the man leaning against the window, apparently asleep. Conductor Boyd stopped beside him a second, and then said: "Ticket, please." The man paid no attention to the remark, and Conductor Boyd at once suspected that he was pretending sleep in order to create the impression that his ticket had already been taken up. Conductor Boyd, however, has long ago grown familiar with this old game dead man as they were cut asunder by the and touching the man upon the shoulder, again "Your ticket, please,"

The man opened his eyes, and looking up at the conductor, put his fingers in his vest pocket. Pulling out some money, he said: "I have no ticket. What is the fare?"

"Where are you going?" asked the conduc "Stone Mountain," answered the man. Conductor Boyd told him the fare and the man paid it. Then he dropped back into his

THE ONLY PASSENGER who got on at Clarkston, and this, together with his attempt to do the road for a ride, caused the conductor to size him up carefully. At Stone Mountain he left the train, but Con ductor Boyd does not remember which way he went. It is certain, however, that he remained shady, for no one in this place saw

And this negro's story adds another feature to the complication of the tragedy.

He is known as Gus Gholstin, and he states that between twelve and one o'clock last night, him until after he was killed, except a negro while out with some dogs which were to be used in a hunt today, he heard some one halloing on the street, but could not find who it was. Later, on going to his home, he saw two men standing together talking.

Between twelve and one o'clock several parties heard a pistol shot, but so far as has been ascertained, Gholston was the only one who was upon the street, and yet Gholstin did That pistol shot was probably the one which caused the death.

THE MURDER DISCOVERED.

So much for the facts which lead up to the

And now for the murder itself.

A freight train is due in this place about three o'clock in the morning, and this morning it was on time. The train was moving on the main line towards the switch, and when near the key the headlight of the engine revealed a man lying flat on the ground between the two tracks. His head was near the rail of the sidetrack, while his feet were close to the main line. The engineer, who made the discovery, gave the alarm and the trainmen with their lanterns responded. It required only a second to ascertain that the man was dead and that wis face was covered with blood. The dead mean was a stranger to them, and the engineer ran his engine back a mile and a half to the home of P. Rass, the section master, to whom he stated what had been discovered. Mr. Rass at once dressed, and, mounting the engine, came to town. In the meantime the railroad men had given the alarm, and several citizens came out. At first it was thought that the man had been a passenger on one of the trains and had fallen off and been killed. In a short time, however, Dr. Goldsmith was upan the ground and astonished everybody by stating that And now for the murder itself. stating that

THE MAN HAD BEEN SHOT. THE MAN HAD BEEN SHOT.

This declaration aroused an interest and Messrs. Veal, Jones, Nash and Marsh, who were among those present, at once recalled the fact that they had heard a pistol shot between two ward one death.

"I know it was about that time," said Mr. Veal, "because I was awake and had just looked at my clock."

Veal, "because I was awake and had just looked at my clock."

Dr. Goldsmith then made an examination of the man's face, which was covered with blood. To those standing around he showed a bullet hole just under the left eye. Then the body was removed to a shed near by and a messenger was sent for Justice McCurdy. Before the body was removed, however, the gentlemen present observed its position. The man was lying upon his back, resting slightly on his right side. His head was between the ends of two cross ties just outside of the rail. One foot almost touched the main line, while the other leg was slightly drawn up. His left arm was alongside his body. His right arm was thrown out and resting upon the end of a cross tie. Under his body, but protruding, was a heavy steel bar. This bar was removed and carefully examined.

After the body was removed to the shed Dr. Goldsmith made a careful examination of the wounds. He inserted a probe into the bullet hole and found that the ball had gone towards rhe back of the head. He then discovered that the other wounds were deep ugly gashes. made with some sharp instrument. The dead made with some sharp instrument. The dead man was a stranger to all aroued him, and his pockets were searched with a view to ascer-taining who he was. In his pockets were found $3.87 in money, a gold watch, a pistol, with all the chambers full, some dynamite papers, but there was nothing bearing any caps, a sun-dial, a pocket knife, and some

THE STEEL BAR.

The bar of steel which was found under the man was carried to the shed with him. It was about fifteen inches long and looked very much like a piece of steel drill. One end was shaped like a drill. The other end was turned at right angles and had a sharp, smooth edge. No one who has seen it has been able to tell what it is, but a general impression prevails that it is a burrelar's tool.

"Who could have committed the murder?" "Who could have committed the murder?"
In a short time the accommodation train came along and Conductor Boyd after seeing the dead man stated that he had been a passenger on the train from Clarkston yesterday evening. Then in some way it became quickly known that the man had a companion while in Olarkston. Bud Veal boarded the train for Decatur in order to inform Solicitor Chandler.

HOW THE MURDER WAS TRACED.

Chandler.

How the Murder was traced.

On the train Mr. Veal met Mr. Henry McCord who does business in this city butresides in Conyers. To Mr. McCord he revealed the story of the murder. When the train reached Clarkston Mr. Jolly was at the depot, and with him Mr. Veal had a conversation to which Mr. McCord was a listener. In the conversation Mr. Jolly stated that two men hed been to his store yesterday afternoon, and described the men. As he described the first one Mr. Veal remarked:

"That is the one lying under the shed up there, but his face is cut all to pieces."

Mr. Jolly then described the other man, and as he completed it, Mr. McCord exclaimed:

"I saw that man as we passed Collinsville.

LEAVING HALSTEAD AND SCHUYLES THE VICTIMS.

THE SENATE ADJOURNS

A SCHEME IN HALSTEAD'S INTEREST

Suppressed Republican Discontent With President Harrison-Removals From Office Not Made Fast Enough.

Washington, April 2 .- [Special.]-With the adjournment of the senate today all the nominations sent to it are confirmed, with the exception of Eugene Schuyler as assistant sec-retary of state, and Murat Halstead as minister to Berlin. There are no nominations hanging fire, and everything was closed up. The special session has been remarkable in one thing, and quite different from that of nearly all other similar special sessions to confirm the appointments of newly inaugurated presidents.
It is not a current thing in history for the senate to reject any appointments so early made in a new administration. Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Cleveland met with no opposition to their nominations at the special sessions called for the purpose of considering nominations. The fact that this senate has turned down two of Mr. Harrison's appointments is unprecedented Mr. Harrison's appointments is unprecedented within the last twenty-five years.

HALSTRAD TO BE REAPPOINTED. many recess appointments which President Harrison will make before the reassembling of congress will be that of Murat Halstead to be inister to Germany. It was stated that Mr. Halstead was anxious that the president should thus act, directly in the face of the senate, as he expects that with the senators from the four new states, which will come into the union before the first of next December, he can be confirmed.

Senator Sherman thought that such a course on the part of the president would be highly probable. Other senators who were friendly to Mr. Halstead's confirmation took a similar view of the matter.

The breach between the president and the senate is a pretty wide one, and Mr. Harrison is given credit for a good deal of stubbornness. It is likely that he will further antagonize that body. AN ANGRY CONGRESSMAN. Congressman Anderson, of Kansas, who was not only a classmate, but as well a room mate, of President Harrison at Miami college, at Oxford, Ohio, and who has for a great many years enjoyed friendly relations with General Harrison, has now become one of the very vigorous kickers against the new administration. Anderson is a very picturesque individual, and never happy unless fighting some-thing, but generally confines his attacks upon corporations. He is an anti-corporation repre-sentative in congress, and through 'him the Pacific railroad funding bill has been defeated in the last two congresses. Anderson is in-clined to predict that the administration is going to be a failure. He says there is too much Blainism and it will not be long before Mr. Blaine will have the administration by the throat. Anderson also is making a great protest agains the dilatory methods employed by the president in making republican appointments. Anderson is, in fact, so independent in politics that he wants to see every democrat fired There's no disguising the fact that there is as much suppressed opposition to President Har-rison, in his own party to-day, as there was at any time by the democratic party against Mr. Cleveland. It will be remembered that the republican papers were full of matter re-garding the differences between Mr. Cleve-land and his party, growing out of the fact that he was not RAPID ENOUGH IN MAKING CHANGES in office. Whatever may be said upon this subject about Mr. Cleveland and the democratic party, comparison cannot be made between the condition of affairs at that time and the present situation. More than half a dozen senators have already expressed themselves in very pronounced terms regarding Mr. Harri son, and it is safe to say that if the senate had remained in session two weeks longer, there would have been open revolt between that body and the executive. It may be, however, that during the next few months in the interim there may be a clearing up of the differences, and when congress meets in December, if not in special session, there may be more harmony than exists at the present time, but this is extremely doubtful.

THE GEORGIA MARSHALSHIP. It Seems It Will Be Some Days Yet Before I

WASHINGTON, April 2.—[Special.]—Attorney-General Miller said tonight to The Constitution correspondent that, with reference to the remaining marshalships for Georgia, he had not given the matter any particular consideration as yet, and it might before he would. He was undecided as to whether he would take any action before the expiration of the term of the present marshal, but the chances were that he would ROCHE DEFEATED.

The Democrats Carry Chicago By a Large

Majority. CHICAGO, April 2 .-- A landslide for the democrats was the result of today's election, as indicated at 7 p. m. At that hour, 207 precincts, out of 390, had been heard from showing a majority thus far of 6,428 for Cregier, democrat, for mayor. Predictions at the city hall gave Cregier the election by 8,000 to 10,000 over Roche, republican. Two years ago Roche carried the city by 20,000.

Interest in the election here today has been intense. Nearly every office in sigh was captured by the democrats. Late returns show that all their candidates on the city ticket are elected by a plurality averaging

THE GEORGIA MORMONS.

THEIR SAFE ARRIVAL IN OGDEN, UTAH.

The Brethren Seem to Be Pleased With the Manner in Which the Native Apostles Recrived Them.

Augusta, Ga., April 2 .- [Special.] - A short time ago about fifty persons from the poorer and ignorant classes of white people left Augusta and vicinity for Utah. They went in charge of several Mormon elders, and were going Mormonites to be.

going Mormonites to be.
Letters have just been received in Augusta from several members of the party and your correspondent obtained an inspection of them.
Thus far these new Mormonsseem well pleased with their change of homes and habits.
SHE SEEMS TO BE PLEASED.
The first, a letter from a Mrs. Reardon, told the inspect from August to Orden. Utah

The first, a letter from a Mrs. Reardon, told of the journey from Augusta to Ogden, Utah, where the party has settled. It describes the seenery along the route and the good treatment the party received at the hands of all. Of Ogden the letter says: Ogden is a much nier place than I had any idea of. The building in the main portion of the town are large and beautiful, and the town is just booming. It is the greatest place for business I ever saw.

Ing. It is the greatest place for business lever and. The people are the finest in the world. They are first class in every way. The people are touy here. They make plenty of money and they use it. They are fine looking, and all use proper language and

Another letter from John Reardon, who has und employment in a publishing house,

Says:

'I never was so surprised in all my life as I am at present. The climate is elegant and you have no idea what a this wing place this is. The town is on a boom, and you can't get a house for love nor money. The Mornous are the wealthiest people in the town, Ogden has a population of about 12,000, of which none are negroes."

of which none are nearoes."

Mr. Rearden speaks in glowing terms of his reception into society. Reardon was unknown to society circles here and is said to have been a noted gambler. HE LIKED HIS SUPPER.

Another letter is from a younger member of the party who speaks of going to school. The following extract was taken from it:

We are stopping at Ogden, Utah. We arrived hero on the night of March 9th. The whole party of about fifty went to Elder Browning's. His wife had mp, or prepared for the whole party and it was the nicest supper I ever sat down to. After supper the party scattered out smong the Brownings to sleep and stay until they could get homes. We have all got homes and moved to them.  It looks tunny here to see the shade trees in the streets apple trees. There are more apples here in the winter than there is Augusta in the spring time. While traveling I went over, through and under mountains. The seenery in the Rocky mountains was the grandest I ever saw, and all shound us was covered with snow. When we got to the top of the mountain we were over two miles above Augusta. Papa says to tell uncle to hurry up and get out here, for these Mormons are certainly the best people in the world. It seems as if they all wanted to do something for you as soon as they get here.

THE ONE THING NOT MENTIONED. Of the religion and practices of the people among whom they have cast their lot nothing is said, and polygamy was not broached in any of the letters.

Thus far the Mormon emigrants, or at least those quoted above, appear to be satisfied with their step—later reports, when the novely has worn off and the situation gets down to root hog or die, may tell a different tale.

The last letter quoted, says, "that all seem to want to do something for you as soon as you gethere." How long this solicitude will hold out, remains to be seen.

THE W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union will be held in Augusta four days, beginning with April 16th.

Mrs. W. C. Sibley, state president, in a talk with your correspondent, says the convention will be one of interest, and will make an impression upon the minds of the public. Hon. Walter B. Hill, of Macon, Sam Jones, Dr. Felton, Mrs. S. F. Chapin, of Charleston, and other prominent prohibition speakers will be heard. The sessions of the convention will be heard. The sessions of the convention will be held in St. John's Methodist church, business ng transacted morning and afternoon, and lresses to the public being made at the night meetings.

The convention will discuss the question of introducing into the public schools the study of physiology with a special view to the effect of alcoholic spirits upon the human body; the question of a state prohibition law, and the question of establishing a state home of refuge for penitent, abandoned women. The charge has been made agaist the Woman's Christian Temperance union that the only objects of their care were drunken men, and they are turning their attention now to fallen women also. A petition is being circulated for signatures in every city and town in the state which reads as follows:

THE CITY AND THE COUNTY. The commission of representatives from the county and city met today to discuss the future disposition of the city hall and jail.

CARROLLTON, Ga., April 2.—[Special.]—Car-Under a contract about seventy years old, the city owns the city hall and jail, and is obliged to furnish courtrooms, etc., for the superior and county courts and board the county's prisoners in the jail. Today the county's after a great deal of discussion on both sides, and numerous resolutions which were proposed and defeated, finally agreed to recommend to the council to turn over the cerated the country retaining the jail and charging the county for their prisoners incarcerated therein, and the county not to build another jail within afteen years. This will relieve the city of the expense of farnishing quarters for the courts, and the amount saved in this way, together with the income from the country prisoners, will save about $6000 a. In this way, together with the income from the county's prisoners, will save about $6,000 a year to the city. This would pay the interest on a hundred thousand dollars which it is proposed by some members of the council the city shall berrow on long time, and build a handome city hall, with offices for all the city officials and police headquarters. The action of the commission will have to be reported to the council for action. council for action.

A LARGE SUIT

Practically D cided in Favot of the Defend

Macon, Ga., April 2.—[Special.]—So the great Frobel suit has been practically decided in favor of the defendants, the Covington and Macon Railroad company, and E. C. Machen. Mrs. M. A. Frobel, of Atlanta, as administratrix of the estate of her late husband, Colonel B. W. Frobel, who was vice-president and general manager of the Covington and Macon road at the time of his death, brought suit against defendants, claiming several hundred thousand fendants, claiming several hundred thousand dollars interest in the Covington and Macon road. The defendants disputed the claim and it finally went to the supreme court, where it was practically decided yesterday against Mrs. Frobel. At the conclusion of the three and a half hours' speech of Colonel Z. D. Harrison, leading attracts, for plaining the person of little Alma, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. W, W. Wilson, a respectable white citizen of Macon, who is an upholsterer and furniture repairer by trade.

The trial took place this afternoon before Justice Freeman. The boy is about thirteen or fourteen years old and well grown for his age, and, perhaps, does not fully understand the enormity of his crime, though his conduct has been reprehensible in the past. The little

They have caught them weighing three and four pounds. Dr. Durham reminds us of one caught by Martin Rogers in one of Dickson's ponds that turned the scales at three and three-quarter pounds. It was of the goggle-eyed variety, and was weighed by Frank Riley and Jeff Warthen. It is quite true that such fish are not often caught, but the existence of one of them overturns Dr. Aubrey's theory.

REAL ESTATE SALE IN THOMASVILLE. Mr. S. R. Van Duzer Makes a Heavy In-

THOMASVILLE, Ga., April 2.—[Special.]—
The Hopkins Real Estate agency sold today to Mr. S. R. Van Duzer, of New York, "Greenwood," the magnificent estate of Mrs. L. Y. Jones, consisting of 1,500 acres of land in two miles of Thomasville. The price to be paid is in the neighborhood of $25,000. Mr. Van Duzer is a great lover of flowers, having $75,000 invested in his conservatory in New York. He admired the beautiful shrubbery on this grand old southern home and bought the place. Thomasville is fortunate in having a Van Duzer to preserve for posterity this typical southern home. Mr. Van Duzer will spend a large sum in adding new beauty to this already fine property.

OOK TO THE CHILDREN

Nothing is so necessary to the health of the child as keeping its blood pure. Nature should be assisted in this by using a harmless vegetable remedy like Swift's Specific.

My little niece had white swelling to such an extent that she was confined to the bed for a long time. More than twenty pieces of bone came out of her leg, and the doctors said amoutation was the only emedy to save her life. I refused the operation and put her on S. S. S., and she is now up and active and in as good health as any child. Columbus, Ga., Feb. 11, '89. Annie Geesling.

My little son, five years old, was afflicted with a disease for which the doctors had no name. The nails came off his fingers, and the fingers came off his hands up to the middle joint. For three years he has suffered dreaffully, and has taken quantities of medicine. He is now getting well under treatment of Swift's Specific.

JOHN DEIRIL. Peru, Ind., Jan. 12, 1889.

Last year my little boy John had a breaking out with sores all over his body, which was painful and troublesome. After using other remedies for several months, while the sores grew worse, I was induced to give him Swift's Specific. He began to improve at once, and after taking three bottles the eruption was gond, and the child was altogether healed.

Rev. L. B. Payne, in charge of the Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., says he has been using S. S. S. with the children in the institution for nine or ten years with the best results. Many cases of hereditary taint have been entirely cured, and the little ones made sound and hearty. My little boy broke out with sores and ulcers, the result of the saliva from a calf coming in contact with a cut finger. The ulcers were deep and painful and showed no inclination to heal, I gave him Swift's Specific, and he is now well.

THE CLOSING DAY:

YESTERDAY.

The Resolution in Regard to the Death of John Bright Creates Discussion-Ingalls Is President Pro Tem.

WASHINGTON, April 2 .- After the presentation of two memorials, one in favor of special privileges in regard to public office for honorably discharged union soldiers, and the other against traffic in intoxicating liquors, the vicepresident laid before the senate Mr. Stewart's resolution, expressing the profound sorrow of the senate at the death of John Bright.

Mr. Sherman suggested that the resolution had better be referred to the committee on foreign relations, as its adoption might estab-lish a precedent that would return to plague Mr. Hawley remarked that no such occasion was likely to arise again. If the United States had ever had a friend in the time of need, that friend was John Bright. Mr. Hoar thought that in this particular case, the senate was safe, as it was not at all likely that a state of things would again arise that would establish between the United States and the citizen of a foreign country the peculiar relations of respect on one side and of tender grateful affection on the other, that existed in this country toward the great English statesman who had just gone to his tomb. With the possible exception of La-Fayette, there was no other citizen of a foreign country for whose memory the American people ENTERTAINED SO STRONG AN ATTACHMENT.

This country had been engaged in a struggle for its life. The republic, constitution, constitutional liberty, freedom, not of one race, but of the common people of every race, had been in issue, and at stake in the great had been in issue, and at stake in the great struggle of twenty-five years ago. If there were any people from whom the United States might have hoped for sympathy in that dreadful contest, it was the English people, from whom the American people had derived their language, their institutions, their laws, and their principles of constitutional liberty; and yet with scarcely an exception, the great statesmen of England, men who were leaders in her social life, manifested unmistakably their sympathy with the rebelion and their exultation at the prospect that the great republic was tion at the prospect that the great republic was approaching its end. It was worse, and the influence of John Bright, which aroused the sentiment of the common people, of the laboring men of Great Britain, to the mistake which her leaders were making, and produced a state of public healing which made English a state of public feeling which made English intervention in behalf of the rebellion impos sible. There were few finer utterances in all literature, few nobler and more stimulant utterances in the eloquence of constitutional liberty, than those magnificent sentences of John Bright in which he pictured the future of the United States and its relations to the future horse of hymenity. The senator from the United States and its relations to the future hopes of humanity. The senator from Chio, Mr. Hoar thought, might not fear that the precedent to be established by the resolution would return to trouble either of them during the period of their public service. He hoped that the motion to refer would be withdrawn and that the resolution would be adouted.

Mr. Teller also advocated the adoption of the resolution. Any man, he said, in the present generation or the preceding generation was entitled to such distinction. No one would deny that John Bright was entitled to it. For more than sixty years that the triangle of the such as the such a illustrious Englishman has stood as an expo-nent of the highest and best that was KNOWN TO THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING PEOPLE.

He was a humanitarian with sympathies as broad and great as the whole world. His sympathies went out to the suffering and down rodden of all the world and he stood today the central figure among men who spent their lives in defense of the great principles on which American institutions were founded. He agreed with Mr. Hoar that the adoption of the agreed with Mr. Hoat the discopping of the resolution would not be likely to prove a precedent to plague the United States senate, because John Brights were exceedingly rare. He trusted that the resolution would be adopted without dissent.

Mr. Sherman, while yielding to none in respect for Mr. Bright, was opposed to the example which the resolution would set, but he ewould offer no obstacle to it and would withdraw the motion to refer.

Mr. Reagan referred to the false step taken by the house of representatives, some years ago, in passing a resolution complimentary to a member of the German reichistag, and having it returned disdainfully by Bismarck. He thought that the pending resolution WOULD ESTABLISH A BAD PRECEDENT, nder which the senate might hereafter he asked to adopt resolutions of regret whenever a foreign statesman or revolutionist might die. He, therefore, renewed Mr. Sherman's mo-tion to refer the resolution to the committee tion to refer the resolution to the committee on foreign relations.

Mr. Stewart opposed the reference of the resolution and favored its adoption. He eulogized the character of Mr. Bright as a leader among men, not by the inheritance of rank, but by the right of great natural endowments and high moral integrity, his public life for nearly half a century having been conspicuous in heroce efforts to remedy ancient abuses.

Mr. Hawley said that the incident to which Mr. Heagan referred differed in all respects from the case of Mr. Bright. In that case, the person commanded had been engaged in a bitter controvercy with the German government and the house had directed a copy of the resolution to be sent to that government. In this case there was no such proposition. It was nothing to the senate whether anybody thought of John Bright as the senate did, but as a matter of fact, whatever there was of as a matter of fact, whatever there was of good in the British nation (of all parties) had borne testimony to Bright's great worth. He was sorry to see any difference of opinion as to the resolution, although he was aware that that difference did not attach to the merits of the great man.

the great man, Mr. Evarts remarked that the discussion had anthing to do with the character of Mr. Bright, but only with the formality of the senate's proceedings.

The question was taken on Mr. Reagan's motion to refer the resolution to the committee on foreign relations, and it was so referred.

VICE-PRESIDENT MORTON'S ADDRESS. The vice-president: The vice-president:

As the present occupant of the chair is about to vacate the chair for the remainder of the session, he desires to avail himself of this opportunity to express his grateful appreciation of the courtesy and consideration which he has received from every member of this body. He desires a so to express the large that he shall find at the next session of the senate every senator in his seating ond health and that he shall then have an opportunity to resume and continue the agreeable relations already established.

Mr. Edmunds then offered a resolution that, n the absence of the vice-president, Mr. Intempore.

The resolution was put by the secretary and agreed to, without division, and then Mr. Ingalls, escorted by Mr. Edmunds, had the oath of office administered to him by the secretary, and took the chair, expressing at the same his grateful acknowledgements to the senate for the renewed expression of its confidence.

The senate then, at 1:50, proceeded to the consideration of executive business, and, at 3:40, on motion of Mr. Cameron, adjourned sine die.

PUSHING THE WORK Towards Getting the American War Ships

to Samoa.

Washington, April 2.—Orders have been given by the navy department to work extra hours in preparing the Adams, Iroquois and Pensacola for sea. The Iroquois is at Mare's Island, California, and can be made ready for sea in six weeks. The Pensacola is at Norfolk and one month's work will make her ready.

and one month's work will make her ready.
The department has not yet decided where the Iroquois and Pensacola will be sent, but they will be available for service in Samoa if there should be any necessity for their presence.
The Gorman vessels "Sperber" and "Alexandrin," which are now on their way to Samoa to replace the wrecked vessels, are not very formidable ships, but at long range fighting would have a decided advantage over the American vessels, owing to their superior armament and speed. The corvette "Alexandrin" is wood, iron and steel, of 2,373 tons

Something Astounding About Crime, if True, and Should be Investigated.

Is crime on the increase? This question has been agitating the public mind for some time; the expression of opinion have been varied, but a preponderance of evidence goes to show that it is increasing. What is the cause of this increase, the same may be said of this. Many causes are assigned, but few will admit that in the progress and enlightenment of this age that we are taking a backward step in anything; but figures are against us, and "figures will not lie." figures are against us, and "figures will not lie."

A still graver question for us to consider, is disease increasing? If so, how can we prepent it? From the most reliable information we conclude that disease is rapidly on the increase. The causes of same are as varied as diseases themselves. Among the most prolific in results is our excessive eating and drinking, and our neglect of disease in its earlier, stages, leaving it alone until our systems fail to longer stand the extra strain placed upon it. Nothing can be true than this. "Outraged nature Nothing can be truer than this. "Outraged nature always demands a penaity." You may be a sufferer from piles or some other disease of the lower bowel that you consider slight and therefore neglect, but the time will come when it will be a grave maiter with you, producing effects disastrous to your physical and mental health. Is is not best for you to attend to this early for it will cost you less in suffering and fianchally, and it can cure you without the semblance of pain and without loss of time. Can you afford to procratinate and take the risk? I can and will prove to you what I say if you will give me a chance. Call and see me, or write for further information. I will be glad to ald you.

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION $2 A YEAR. SENT TO ANY ADDRESS

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 3, 1889.

The Farmers and Their Enemies. A clean and terrible issue is made be tween the farmers of the south and the bosses of the jute-bagging trust! Last year the issue was sprung late in the season, and the farmers had no time to organize. Now it is announced boldly and openly, nearly a year in advance, that the men who robbed the farmers by a surprise tast season propose to do it deliberately next season.

This is one of the most important emergencles the farmers of the south, and indeed the people of the south, have ever had to meet! If this jute-bagging combine is successfully put through this year, then, indeed, are our people at the mercy of whatever gang may choose to rob them. If an article of prime necessity and general use can be controlled by a half dozen men and its price raised to the limit of their rapacity, then there is no reason why every article of necessity may not be similarly controlled until the people exist only by tolerance of their masters! Let it be understood that the jute-bagging kings do not even suggest that the people will derive any benefit from their course. It is simply and frankly a measure of self-aggrandizement. "We propose to make the farmers pay us $3,000,000 this year for bagging, in excess of what they paid last year, and we could levy twice as much if we wanted it." That is what they say!

Well, we do not believe they can do it next season! They did it last year, but are warned, organized, and are ready for the conflict. And they will win! We have faith in the free institutions of this country. We do not believe any class of the people can be put and held in vassalage to a polit-Ical or moneyed oligarchy.

THE CONSTITUTION enters this fight with the farmers, and it will stand with them to the end. We feel sure every paper in the south will make common cause in this, and we shall see if the press and the people, embattled and united, cannot prevail against this dangerous and outrageous oppression. Every resource should be exhausted, every remedy tried, every appeal ended, before we submit to the forced levy of the robbers who cut into the poverty of our people to swell their already enormous fortunes. And they can be beaten. For every wrong there is a remedy, and against every oppression an adequate and proper resistance. Only let us find the way of best resistance, and we shall all walk into it and abide there till the fight has been whipped and the people freed from this infamous gang of plunderers!

A Town Governed by Petticoats.

One year ago the town of Oskaloosa, in Cansas, made itself the laughing stock of the state by electing a lady mayor and a council of ladies.

was to enforce the Sunday law. They allowed hotels, livery stables, barber shops and drug stores to keep open, but stopped the sale of eigars, tobacco, bread and ice cream. Next, the bad boys were looked after. A proclamation was issued ordering all boys under the age of eighteen to keep off the streets after eight o'clock at night.

It occurred to the ladies that while they had the power the tobacco evil ought to be dealt with, but the city attorney told them that squirting tobacco juice over the side walk came under the head of personal liberty and could not be interferred with. then tried moral suasion, and appointed a committee to visit- every tobacco chewer in town. This course was com pletely successful, and there was no further trouble about the sidewalks.

For many years very little attention had been paid to the streets, and the property owners were unwilling to be taxed for new pavements. The lady mayor and her council decided that they would have good streets and sidewalks. They passed ordinances, made contracts, superintended the work in person, and successfully fought the Injunctions and other suits brought against them by the property owners in the courts.

Now that they have survived a year of petticoat rule the citizens of Oskaloosa are not inclined to make fun of it. They say that their town has prospered, and has made an enviable reputation for good morals, law and order.

In this particular instance the female suffrage experiment in Kansas has turned out very satisfactorily. But one swallow does not make a summer, and it will take more than one Oskaloosa to revolutionize the world.

Negro Importations in the Southwest. Not long ago, some of the planters of Louisiana and Mississippi went into the business of importing negroes from Alabama and North Carolina.

In this matter they profited by the earnestness and the enthusiasm of the various railroad passenger agents who will go to any personal inconvenience to secure travel over the lines which they represent; and it The former is like the English house of was not very long before the farmers of Louisiana and Mississippi had their places fleoded with negroes of whom they knew nothing, although they might have known that laborers so easily persuaded to leave their homes were practically worthless.

The farmers of these states might have known, too, that laborers so ready to violate the terms of one contract would not hesitate to violate the terms of another. The majority of the negroes who have recently gone to the southwest at the solicitation of the railroad passenger agents were already under contract for the present year, but sentatives, which has 300 members, and the

they had no hesitation in violating their contracts.

That the planters who proposed to employ these migratory negroes should have had an idea that they would carry out the terms of one contract, after having broken another equally as binding, shows how curiously the human mind works. According to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, some of the southwestern planters are surprised because their imported negroes are already leaving them, but these planters ought to have known what to expect when they made their importations.

The whole episode, if this importation can be called such, is very funny. Both the planters and the railroad agents thought they were in creat luck when they were enabled to secure such a large body of laborers. But when the negroes reached Vicksburg, in Mississippi, they fell under other influences and left the plantations and the agents in the lurch. The negroes, or a majority of them, under influences similar to those that had tolled them from North Carolina and Alabama, went on to the Yazoo delta, and there, after a time, their employers will go through a similar expe-

In some of the Louisiana parishes there has already been trouble over the desertion of some of the imported negroes, and at Vicksburg an attempt was made to capture some of the escaping contract hands; but, as in North Carolina, where such a fuss was made a short time ago, such a movement amounts to nothing. Those who hire negroes who have broken their contracts, or who are willing to break them, can have no reasonable expectation that their experience will be different from that of the men who have previously contracted with the negroes. Such labor is utterly untrustworthy and undesirable, and all that the planters of Louisiana and Mississippi have accomplished by tolling negroes from North Carolina and Alabama has been to add a large number of thriftless people to a population already pestilent with that sort of material.

Southern Cookery.

Since Mr. George Alfred Townsend, the novelist and newspaper correspondent came south for the benefit of a case of gout large enough to envelop one of his feet, he has been much troubled about his stomach. His first set-back, as was stated several days ago, was at Savannah, where, against the advice of a northern prescription that he wore in his vest pocket, he ate a piece of shad. This piece of shad, contrary to all custom, had been soaked in a candlemaker's vat, and this remarkable affair hap pened in the face of the well-known fact that there are no candle-makers in Savannah, but only a few humble purveyors of olive oil made out of cotton seed. For this same brand of cotton seed olive oil, Mr. Townsend pays a dollar and a half a pint in New York, and it is warranted pure; but in Savannah, in the neighborhood of its manufacture, it is only seventy-five cents the pint, with adequate trimmings.

The trouble with Mr. Townsen 1 is that his stomach is almost as large as his swollen foot, and that it makes demands on him that cannot be filled except at caravansaries where there are six waiters to one greedy guest. We extend him our sympathies and our consideration. A little sai-soda and water after the hog's-bait that he seems to call for, compose an aliment worth considering, and we present him the prescription free of charge, feeling sure that the injustice he has done to southern cooking will be fully atoned for when he brings his appetite into reasonable accord with the

We may say here that we do not propose to defend southern hotels in this matter, but when such a widely-quoted correspondent as "Gath" proposes to make the cuisine of public houses the standard of cookery in the south, we feel like saying to The first thing that the new officials did him that he ought to put up for a week or so at a private house. At some of the humble ones, even, he would learn the error of his ways.

But, as there is no satisfying a dyspeptic, so there is no way of adequately filling the stomach of a gouty man, unless a dump is called into requisition. We advise "Gath," however, when he next comes south, to get at, if he can, some genuine southern cookery. He will immediately become one of our fellow citizens.

The Japanese Constitution.

Japan, always considered the foremost, in point of civilization, of Asiatic nations, has blazed the way for the final overthrow of the absolute autocracy which for ages has been the characteristic of Asiatle governments. In the adoption of a new constitution based on the idea of popular government the Japanese empire has put itself far in advance of any other Asiatic country, and its new system of government marks another era in the political history of Asia.

The new constitution is modeled more after that of Great Britain than that of the United States, though some of its features are decidedly more monarchial and aristo cratic than that of the former. A spirit of democracy and liberality pervades the empire, and the new laws are gratifying evidences that the tendency of the people is toward popular self-government, the right to which is practically recognized in the new constitution, though the mikado is looked upon as the surce of all power and does not concede the sovereignty of the people. The mikado really is left no more power than the average monarch of Europe, and his duties and privileges are very similar to those of the queen of Great Britain. The constitution guarantees protection to all subjects in nearly every privilege that the people of the United States are guaranteed, including the right of property, liberty of speech, and of the press, and freedom of religious worship.

The governing body is called the imperial diet, and consists of two branches, the house of lords and the house of representatives peers, and its seats are filled by the nobility. with hereditary title, and by distinguished persons chosen by the mikado. There are also a number of elective lords, which must be less than the number of those who hold their seats by right of title, who are chosen from the different districts, from and by the fifteen male inhabitants who pay the highest amount of direct tax. Thus it will be seen that the upper house is quite a lordly affair and is decidedly out of reach of the massesjust as in England.

But it is not so with the house of repre requisite to a seat in which is just about the same as to a seat in our congress, or the English commons. The budget must originate in this house, which is in every way co-ordinate with the other. The mikado convokes the imperial diet, and has the right to dissoive it-the same as the queen's right to prorogue parliament. In commercial intercourse Japan is closer to this country than any another Asiatic government, and the people of the United States will watch with particular interest the result of the change in its government, which can only be for the better, and which is a wonderful step forward, not only for Japan, but for Asia.

DEACON RICHARD SMITH, of Cincinnati, has announced a firm purpose to go gunning for the republican enemies of Murat Halstead. There is evidently great sport ahead.

Catch your breath and read:

In the march of progress that granite stairway should be extended to meet the granite monument on the summit; the summit should be circled with a tiled and marbed floor, and this splendid and majestic hill, upon the side that fronts the city, should be terraced in symmetrical banks, sodded solidly with binegrass, cut with granite steps, and sprinkled with seats and pagodas from its lofty summit in sweeping curves of green to its romantic base resting upon the Elowaia.

When this is done, as it will be done in time, Rome will have a summer promenade and lookout unsurpassed in beauty and enjoyment since the hanging gardens made mad and glad the people of Babylou.

ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE. Inauguration Day.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Why was the 4th of March selected as inauguration day? Why not the 30th of April, as in the case of the lanaguration of General Washington? READER.

After the adoption of the federal constitution the old congress fixed the first Wednesday in January as the day for the states to appoint electors; the first Wednesday in February as the day for those elec to elect a presiont and vice-president, and the first Wednesday in March for the president and vicepresident to take the oath of office. The firs Vednesday in March, 1789, fell on the 4th, and Wednesday in answer, rest, ten on the fin, and here: that became the day of the beginning of the presidential term. Owing to difficulties in travel in those days, Washington was not inaugurated until the 30th of April, but his term had con the 4th of March.

WANAMAKER FOR PROHIBITION. He Exhorts His Class to Vote and Work for Prohibition.

From an Exchange.
PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Postmaster-General Wanamaker made his first public utterance to day on the question of high license and prohibition. He declared in favor of the constitutional amendment, and exhorted the 800 persons who listened to his words to work, pray and vote for it.

Mr. Wanamaker reached Bethany Sunday-school at 2 p. m. Half an hour later, while the Bethany Wanamaker prchestra played the opening hymn, Mr. Wana ker was in his place as superintendent of the lar-gest Sunday school class in America. After the nusual exercises Mr. We mamaker led the way to the church, followed by 400 members of his adult Bible class and 400 visitors. While the visitors were being seated Mr. Wanamaker announced that it was quarterly meeting and that there was no regular lesson. He said he had been requested to tak of temperance. He read a portion of the fifth chapter temperance. He read a portion of the fifth chapter of Ephesians, beginning with the verse, "Be not drunk with wine." He said: "Right here in our cities are broken-hearted people, beaten against the rocks of adversity by this tide of liquor and of license. The man who will not sign a temperance pledge, though he does not need it himself, to belp a weaker brother, is not so much of a man as he thinks himself to be. * *

What's the reason you won't stand cut for the amendment? Because you like a glass of beer.
You say: 'I want to be free to take an occasional drink if I feel like it.' What influence keeps you from voting for the amendment? Isn't it. the influence of the glass of beer? There are thousands of men in this city who do not get drunk. They say: 'We have the right to drink it if we want to; to sell it, to buy it or to give it away. A man may not drink it at all, but he may be under the influence of the liquor spirit. He will say: "I am a temperance man, but I am in business and the liquor people." eal with me, so I won't say anything against it "Just as the salcon keeper must answer for every glass he seils, so we must answer for voting for liquor. It is our duty to make it a: difficult to get l'quor as it is to get poison.

"License means that the city, the state and he saloon keeper shall go into partnership to ruin men, to build up jails, almshouses, hospi als, and houses of correction, and to keep up the taxes. God's going to count the votes. Vote for prohibi-tion and you will be voting for Him, for order, for religion, and for the highest civilization. He will see every ballot. When you go home tonight go down on your knees every one of you, and pray God to help you to carry the amendment.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 2.-[Special.]-The Dortch election bill, which provides the Australian plan of secret balloting, and which is now in force in Massachusetts and one or two other states, was passed by the state senate this morning by a vote of 17 to 14, being a bare constitutional majority. Only five democrats voted against the bill. These were Alcorn, Apple, Cobbs, Hall and Lamb. The bill was immediately sent to the house, and the senate bill substituted for a house bill the same effect, and passed by a vote of 59 to 26. The registration bill, which had already passed the senate, was then taken up and passed by a strict party vote. There two bills apply to every civil district in the state having veting population of 500. During the call of he roll in the house the republican members rathered at the left hand side of the clerk's sesk and unanimously voted "no" every me a member's name was called. The dis cder was the worst ever seen in the hall, and members favoring the bill had to crowd to the lerk's desk and announce their votes in stentorian tones. Governor Taylor is favorable to both these bills, and they will be approved.

FUSS AND FEATHERS.

ALL ABOUT THE TROUBLE IN THE GOVERNOR'S VOLUNTEERS.

Some Serious Charge: Made Against Captain Jackson McHenry About His Trip to Washington, and Some Strong Statements in Which He Turns the Tables on His Enemies.

The trouble between Statesman Jackson McHenry and some of the members of his company has broken out anew.

The inauguration of President Harrison is at the bottom of it all. If Harrison hadu't been inaugurated Jackson would have stayed at home; if Jackson had stayed at home all would have been serene. Heuce, if Harrison had not been inaugurated, all would have been serene. But it isn't. There are low mutterings, and some not so low, among the members of the Georgia Volunteers.

There are two factions-the McHenry faction and the faction headed by Lieutenant Jones. Jones leads the fight on McHenry. What Lieutenant Jones Says.

R. H. Jones is the first lieutenant of the company. He claims that two-thirds of the members of the company are against Captain Jackson McHenry because he collected money to take the company to Washington and not only failed to do so, but also failed to make a report to the company before he left for Washington. Jones says he has never been able to get a report from McHenry in reference to the collections alleged to have been made, that the company have held no meeting since McHenry's return, that several of the company have requested McHenry to resign and that the company have refused to be mustered by him any more, and that they are seriously thinking of asking the governor to order a new election for captain.

These are the general charges which are being circulated against Captain McHenry, added to which is the specific charge that he collected about $75 from various people for the purpose of taking the company to Washington, failed to report to the company, and made the trip himself, and has steadily refused to account for the money.

A Talk With Captain McHenry. company have held no meeting since McHen-

A Talk With Captain McHenry. Captain Jackson McHenry replies to these charges in characteristic style.

"The whole trouble," said he, "is just this: These lies are being told on me because Jones wants to be captain of the company. He wants me to resign, you see, so that he can get my place. I don't intend to resign as long as there is any suspicion about my conduct. R. H. Jones and Tom Cox are the only members of the company who have advised me to step down and out, but I didn't take their advice. They've got no right to dictate to me about it.

They've got no right to dictate to me about it."

He said the company has had two regular meetings since he got back from Washington, but Jones and Cox wouldn't come to them.

"How about your trip to Washington?"

"I offered to borrow $500 to take the company, and was willing to sign a note for the purpose. Jones and Cox refused to sign the note and the money was not borrowed: Of course I wasn't going to sign the note all by myself and be responsible for the money to take these ten-cent niggers on the trip. I then said that if each member of the company would put up $10 I would try to raise the balance of the money to take them on. I went to the hall at 9 c'clock the Saturday before I left and waited 'till 3 c'clock; but the members didn't come up with the cash. Two or three put up the $10, but of course that was not enough, so the money was not raised and the company couldn't go. Jones and Cox didn't put up a nickle. I then borrowed a few dollars and put it with my own money and went to Washington. The round trip ticket cost $17.50. That left me a little over $12. My board in Washington didn't cost me a cent, but I gave the lady with whom I board. cent, but I gave the lady with whom I boarded $2. Then I spent seventy-five cents for hack fare and five cents for street car, only $2.80 in all."

Jackson goes into details about the expen-Jackson goes into details about the expendeture of the forty-five dollars, which he raised for the trip, and says he will give the figures to the company at its meeting. He says of the balance he turned over twenty-three dollars and eighty-nine cents to Jones, who is making this fight on him. He claims that Jones has not reported. He's, flighting his enemies with their own weapons.

"Will you make a report Thursday night at the meeting?"

"Will you make a report Thursday night at the meeting?"

"I will, I've done reported at two meetings of the company s'ace I got back, and I'll report again. I want this thing to be settled square and I don't intend to resign until it is; and if I do resign until I want a CONSTITUTION reporter to come to the meeting Thursday night, and I want Jones and Cox to be there. I don't want 'em to dodee that be there. I don't want 'em to dodge that meeting like they did the other two. I think it about time Jones was making a renort—come talking about me not making one."

"What else?"

"Only this. I want to say to all of my white friends that subscribed through me for that trip, if they are not satisfied that I didn't steal the money, I'll pay every cent back that I got from each one of 'em."

W. J. JOHNSON, COLORED, APPEARS BEFORE THE GOVERNOR.

Hh Says That He Was Ordered to Leave Walker County B:canse He Wrote Governor Gordon & Letter About the Whipping of Henry Brown and the Burning of His House by Outlaws-Re wards to Be Offered for the Criminals.

Governor Gordon had a colored caller yes terday who is in deep trouble.

His name is W. J. Johnson of La Fayette, Walker county.

He is the man who wrote to the Governor me time ago about the outrages committed in Walker by masked men and for that reason he was notified to leave the county.

He says that he fied the county being fear-ful that if he stayed there he would be killed.

Johnson is a quiet looking, intelligent black man. He was educated at the Atlanta university.

"I did not want to be killed," said he, "so I left. I own a house and two lots in LaFayette, and my stock consists of seven head of cattle and twelve hogs. Besides this I am the owner of several acres of good land in Walker county. I left my wife at my home in LaFayette to take care of my property. I have no children I wrote the letter of Governor Gordon about the whipping of Henry Brown, a colored man, and was ordered to leave the county. This accounts for my being in Atlanta at this time.

"Tell the Henry Brown story."
"It is this: Henry Brown is a colored man who lives on Mr. Joe Wardlaw's plantation. In Mr. Wardlaw's absence Brown superintended the place for him. There are several tenants on the place. For some time past Mr. Wardlaw has been missing corn shucks and Brown found out that a white man, named McWhorter, was using the provender and reported him to Mr. Wardlaw. McWhorter heard of this and, on the 9th of March. band of disguised white men went to Henry Brown's house and tried to get him to come out. Brown barred the door and remained in the house with his wife and child. Failing to get him out, the men poured kerosene oil on his dwelling and set it on fire. The inmates ran out in order to save their lives. The masked men seized Brown and, after giving him a terrible whipping, rode off."

"Have any arrests been made?" "No. The officers of the county are afraid arrest the law breakers, and while the good citizens of the county do not approve of the outrage, they are powerless to do anything. As soon as it was found out that I wrote to Governor Gordon about it, I was notified to leave the county." "How many men were engaged in it?" "About twenty-five or thirty. I think that I can spot twenty-five of them, and if detectives should be sent to the county, the perpetrators of the outrage can be arrested.

Governor Gordon has decided to offer a re-ward of $250 for the apprehension, with proof to convict, of the man who set fire to Brewn's house, or a reward of $100 each for the others concerned in the burning of the house. The rewards will be offered for the men who committed arson, a crime punishable with death.

Immediately after the train left Mr. McCord Immediately after the train left Mr. McCord wrote the description of the man as he appeared to him and handed it to Mr. Veal, Mr. Veal stepped off the train at Decatur, and entering the telegraph office, sent a telegram to the Conyers marshal. Here it is:

DECATUR, Ga., April 2, 1889,—W. H. M. Austin, Conyers: Arrest man wearing beaver hat, with hand satchel, Prince Albert coat. Accommodation train passed him at Collinsville. Supposed to have murdered a man at Stone Mounsain. Search for money.

dence to notify him.

THE MAN ARRESTED. By half past seven Marshal Austin had re-ceived the telegram and with his deputies was on the lookout for the person described. Dep-nty Smith was assigned to the railroad, and before reaching the oil mill this side of Conyers, encountered a man answering the de-yers, encountered a man answering the description in every particular except one.

He had no satchel:

The deputy, however, felt thoroughly satisfied that he was face to face with the man he wanted. Walking up to him, he said:

"Where are you going?"

"Conyers," answered the man.

HE WAS A PRISONER.

Side by side the prisoner and deputy walked into Conyers and into the stationhouse where the man remained carefully watched. Marshal Austin at once telegraphed the arrest, and in a few minutes was instructed to bring the prisoner to this place on the first train. When the train reached Conyers the marshal was at the depot with his prisoner securely handthe depot with his prisoner securely hand-cuffed. On the way down he made several attempts to engage the prisoner in conversa-tion, but without success. Before leaving Conyers, however, the prisoner retained Judge Gleaton as his attorney, and to every question which was asked, except one, he made the same answer. That answer was:

"My attorney has advised me not to talk."
"The only question he would answer was to give his name when asked for it.

give his name when asked for it.

HE ARRIVES HERE.

When the train reached this place there was a large crowd at the depot. By this time it was generally known that the dead man had been in Clarkston the day before with a companion, and the description of that companion was equally well known. The instant he stepped from the train with the officer he was recognized by all present. It did not require the handcuffs to assist in the recognition. He had been accurately described. Sasjiff Nash was on hand to receive the prisoner, and, accompanied by the marshal, started at once to Veal's hall, whither the body had been removed. As the prisoner passed through the to Veal's hall, whither the body had been removed. As the prisoner passed through the crowd he kept his eyes riveted upon the ground, not raising them once to look his fellow-man in the face. Many persons in the crowd not only recognized the prisoner as the man described, but recognized him as the son-in-law of a prominent citizen of Gwinnett county. Then it quickly became known that the prisoner had been a school teacher in Gwinnett county for a number of years, and had married a Miss Nash.

Riviere was led to the hall and up to the cooling boards upon which the dead body was lying. The hall was crowded with people, and as the prisoner reached the dead man's and as the prisoner reached the dead man's side everybody pressed closely up to see the effect. The sheriff removed the cloth which covered the battered and bruised face, and the prisoner looked upon the brutal work which he is supposed to have done.

"Do you know that man?" asked Marshal

Austin.

The prisoner's hands were drawn close together by the claims. His eyes rested a second upon the dead man's face and then went up to the ceiling. His chin began to tremble and his teeth to chatter.

But he made no answer.
Do you know him," asked Sheriff Nash.
Only the trembling chin and staring eyes The prisoner was then removed to another

The prisoner was then removed to another part of the hall and given a seat.

THE INQUEST BEGINS.

A jury of inquest was organized, and an official inquiry began. The discovery of the body and the articles found upon it were described by Mr. Rass, the section master, and Dr. Goldsmith. Mr. Meador told of the visit of the dead man and said in addition to what has been stated:

"Saturday morning after breakfast be said he would go down town and get some change and. would go down town and get some change and settle his hill. He came back and said he could get no charge. I then told him I would change the bill. He pulled out a roll and finally found a five. He said he was going to the mountain and would be back by four."

Dr. Summey and Dr. Hamilton described the wounds. J. D. Kimbrell identified the dead man and the live man as the two who were seen together in Clarkston yesterday, and recounted their actions, and W. R. Doby substantiated the jstory. The inquest was then adjourned until three o'clock in the afternoon to await the arrival of Solicitor Chandler.

noon to await the arrival of Solicitor Chandler.

THE PRISONER REFUSES TO TALK.
Riviere, accompanied by his attorney, was before the inquest when it reopened. Judge Gleaton stated that his client was under arrest, and that he had advised him to answer any questions. The prisoner adhered to his attorney's advice, and when placed upon the stand would not open his mouth. Messrs. Kimbrell and Doby were then recalled and identified the prisoner as the man who was with the dead man in Clarkston yesterday. Mr. McCord identified him as the man he had seen during the morning, and created something of a sensation by saying:

"When I saw him after he was arrested he had a spot of blood on his nose between his eyes."

had a spet of blood on his nose between his eyes."

Marshal Austin detailed the arrest and identified the men as the two whom he had spotted in Conyers. Said the marshal:

"When he was arrested this morning he had this pistol. One barrel loeked like it had been discharged and there was a cartridge in that chamber with grease on it. He had one hundred and seventy-seven dollars, seventeen five dollar bills, one fity-dollar bill, one twenty-dollar bill, two ten-dollar bills, one one-dollar bill and one dollar in silver and these papers."

these papers."

The marshal then surrendered the effects. Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Summey were recalled again. Dr. Hamilton stated that death had been caused by the bullet and that the other wounds had probably been made with the bar of real.

the bar of steel.

Dr. Summey made the same statement, and response to a question produced the bullet high had been cut from the dead man's As the bullet was tossed upon the table the prisoner began to tremble.

The builet was terribly battered, but experts said it was the same as those in the pistol.

The coroner handed Dr. Summey the steel tool, asking: "Doctor, could that have made the other younds?"

"It made the wound under the right eye,

BLOOD ON HIS CLOTHES.

While the doctor was upon the stand I found an unusual stain upon the prisoner's silk hat, and handing it to the doctor asked him what it was. The doctor examined it carefully for a moment and then said:

"It is blood."

This statement created a profound sensation, and every eye was turned upon the prisoner.

He was pale and trembling.

The solicitor then instructed the jury to take the man to a room and to examine his clothes carefully. On his breeches was found two or three spots of bloods. On the back of his coat three or four spots were found and upon the right sleeve an indistinct line could be traced from the shoulder to the wrist.

This line the physicians said was blood.

This line the physicians said was blood.

The prisoner wore a clean shirt, upon which there were no stains, but it is generally believed that if his satchel can be found a bloody shirt will be found in or near it. During the investigation the prisoner was considerably disturbed and extremely nervous. His attorney was bitterly opposed to the presence of any one during the examination except the members of the intry.

A TALK WITH THE PRISONER.
Riviere's attorney instructed him to say nothing. However, the augur was applied, and in response to a question, he said:

"I was born in Wilkes county, but have been living in Gwinnett several years. Yes, I am a married man, but have no children. I have been married about three years."

It is understood that he left Augusta and went to Atlanta were he was in business.
Among his papers were a Gate City bank pass book and a letter from Joshua Burtz, the ampleyment agency man.

the employment agency man.
HE IS TAKEN TO DECATUR. The coroner's jury decided that further testimony was necessary and adjourned to meet tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. The solicitor then instructed the sheriff to carry the prisoner to Decatur. This was done for safety, because the miners at this place felt safety, because the miners at this place felt considerbly outraged and there are many reasons to believe that the prisoner would not have been safe here.

There are several theories as to the murder. One is that the missing satchel contained burglars' tools and the men were bent upon mischief. It is believed that they had been locating work and were in this place to carry some of it out. Before cetting to work they probably fell out and the quarrel resulted in the murder. Another is that the men were detected in their work and possibly the death shot was fired by some one who is not known, and that Riviere's flight was due to his nefarious work.

That the two men were on friendly terms there can be no doubt. In the dead man's pocket was found a half sheet of note paper, on which was written: Augusta, Ga., April 1, 1889.—Emery & Co.—Gents. Augusta, Ga., April 1, 1889.—Emery & Co.—Gents.

There was nothing more on the sheet.
In the live man's pocket there was a sheet of paper just like the one in the dead man's pocket and in the same handwriting was:

My mother persuaded me to try B. B. B. To my utter astonishment every ulcer quickly healed." Benj, Morris, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I suffered years from syphilitic blood poison which refused to be cured by all treatment. Physicians pronounced it a hopeless case. I had no appetite, I had pains in hips and joints and my kidneys were diseased, My throat was ulcerated and my breast a mass of running sores. In this condition I commenced a use of B. B. B. It healed every ulcer and sore and cured me completely within two months." DANGEROUS USE OF STRONG PURGATIVES Most pills, purgatives and Bitter Waters, which act quickly upon the bowels, irritate and often destroy the mucous coats of the stomach and often destroy the nucous coats of the stomach and bowels. Indeed their cathartic action is directly caused by the irritation of the bowels, which they produce. Their action should be soothing and stimulating instead of irritating. A continued use of such remedies produces chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. This often ends in dangerous disease. The use of the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is bigbly recommended as an aperical, laxative and diaactic, because its action is due solely to its solvent and slimulating properties. It soothes and allays inflammation, and is therefore much preferable to all strong purgatives and Bitter Waters.

Beware of imitations. Dr. Toboldt's lecture on Carlsbad Sprudel Salt and pamphlets mailed free, Eisner & Mendeison Co., sole ageuts, 6 Barcley St., New York. Absolutely Pure.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 2.-The stock market today was dull, but somewhat more animated than yester-day, and it was higher and stronger throughout, almost everything traded in being left morally higher at the end. London was buyer to a limited ent this morning, and considerable covering wa e by local shorts, which gave the market early a strong feeling. Bears, after the first demand was satisfied, made a demonstration against the list; but as today was election day in Chicago, and operators at that centre were doing very little, while report emanating from there were also less pessimistic in their character, the effort was rewarded with but poor success, and the pressure was soon removed. The covering movement assumed larger proportions toward the end of the day, and buying for long account also showed up more prominently, and an upward movement became quite marked, reaching all portions of the list. Aichison, New England, Reading, Northwestein and Union Pacific attracted the most attention of the leading shares, and trans actions in the first named again reached large fig-ures, and its advance was more marked than any-thing else outside of specialties. Among the latter to Gas was most conspicuous, and it again Chicago Gas was most considerate, and the leading active stocks, while it led the list in strength displayed. San Francisco stocks reacted sharply from the depression of the past few days, and both common and preferred were strong all the way out. Memphis and Charleston was another specialty which marked a rise, but the others were dull and without feature. The ney market worked smoothly, and rates receded as the day wore along, and the last hour saw the heaviest buying, and the greater portion of improve-ment was made then. The close was fairly active and strong at about the best prices of the day. entire active list is higher, and Chicago Gas rose 24. NEW YORK, April 2-[Special.]-Henry Clews & Co.'s cotton circular on the market today says: The cotton market today again ruled dull and uninteresting. The first prices on the near months at the opening were made at an advance of 1 point. This was soon lost, however, on the absence of business or any sustaining influence and the result of the day's business shows no change from yesterdays prices and nothing gained by either the bulls or the bears. Receipts at the ports for the day are nuch lighter than last week and last year. With the fall-ing off in receipts which we expect to occur shortly active speculation will be resumed and prices will then move up and recover the loss suffered thr the dullness during the past week. Spot market ruled quiet at unchanged prices, with sales of 265 bales. Southern markets were steady to firm with amail business. Liverpool spot market is in the same stagmant condition at unchanged prices. Fu-tures opened quiet and steady, advanced 164 later, and at the close was steady at opening prices.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2-[Special.]-Glenny & Violett, in their cotton circular, say: The market is featureless and nothing but receipts larger or smaller will change the situation. Liverpool closed steady. and here the same as yesterday. Port receipts 1,000 bales less than last year. Spots here steady; sales 1,000 bales; middlings 9 15-16

A HARD FIGHT:

FOUR DAYS WITH A FIRE IN TIME OF THE WAR.

flow Old Number One Did Duty to Save the Commissary Stores of the Confederacy-The Old Flag Pole and the Men Who Climbed It

"I tell you," said Mr. Jentzen, secretary of Volunteer fire company No. 1, "we had some hard old fights in the war times." "Tell us about that terrible Whitehall

'Well, it was a four days' fight, unparall eled in the history of Atlanta volunteer fire companies. Late on a Sunday afternoon somebody yelled 'Fire?' No. 1 came out with Blue Dick, and as usual was at the scene of the fire in a few minutes. It was located on Whitehall between Hunter and Mitchell, and whitehall between Hunter and Mitchell, and my Lord, such a fight!"

"Did you conquer?"

"We always conquered, first or last, fer old No. I knew no such word as fail; but we were a long time winning the victory. There were a number of buildings on fire, but the principal thing was that the confederate army stores—the commissary—was located there.

"There was a lot of stealing. Hams, shoulders, sides of bacon; salt, sugar—nothing was too sweet to be appropriated. Mid Blackwell stole a lot of salt—salt that was salt then—and I restole it from him. We had a big old time during that fire."

"How long did it last?"

"From Sunday evening till Thursday morning, four days and nights. We would put it out, and return to the engine house, wash off our hose and get ready to put things in order, when 'clang! clang!' would go the bell. There was a flaguole 180 feet high in front of the engine house then, betit in sections like a ship mast. When the beil would ring some member would shin up that pole to reconnoiter. 'Same old place!' and away we would go and fight the fresh ontbreak."

"Pretty well exhausted at its conclusion were you not?"

"Yes, we were worn out with fatigue and incessant fighting, but we won in the end."

"Yes, we were wors out with fatigue and incessant fighting, but we won in the end."
"Who of you were there?"
"There were old Jake Strateman, Dave Young, Jim Parnell, Join H. Mecaslin, Mid Blackshear, J. H. Jentzen, John Mecaslin, Tom Haney, Sr., John Buckalew, John Berkele, Charley Clatz and others.
"Two-thirds of them are dead, and we have laid them away to rest until a different sort of a bugle awakens them from their long sleep."
"You made a brave fight."
"Yes, and we were well remembered. Do you know how came the firemen exempted

"Yes, and we were well remembered. Do you know how came the firemen exempted from military duty?"
"No, never heard."
"It was because of that very fire. When the confederate authorities, at Richmond, knew that we had made such a fierce fight to preserve the stores from destruction, orders were sent mediately to exempt all of us from conscription and from any sort of military duty whatever. So, you see, that was the first official recognition of the hard work of the volunteer fire companies. see, that was the first official recognition of the hard work of the volunteer fire companies. Since that time we have never been molested in the way of public service, and as The Con-stitution said this morning, our motto is: "The old guard dies, but never surren-ders!"

CAPITOL FURNISHING COMMISSION

Award Contracts for Improving the Grounds and Want an Additional Appropriation The commission to furnish the capitol met. sterday morning in Treasurer Hardeman's, office and awarded the contracts for improving the grounds.

There were present Governor Gordon, Colonel Hardeman, Hon. Frank P. Rice and onel Hardeman, Hon. Frank P. Rice and Comptroller W. A. Wright.

The contracts were awarded as follows:

To Mr. S. H. Venable for grading at eighteen cents per cubic yard, and for placing curbing at seventy cents per lineal foot.

To I. L. Foster & Co. for putting in cement walks at thirty cents per square foot.

To E. D. Jenkins & Co. for the granite steps at $1.40 per lineal foot.

The contract must be completed by June 15th, by which time the remaining work on the building will be completed.

The sum of $5,000, the amount appropriated, is not sufficient to have the grounds improved in a manner to harmonize with the magnificence of the building, so the commissioners solicited bids for improving the grounds in solicited bids for improving the grounds in proper style.

It will take the sum of $25,649, according to the plans and specifications, to have this work done, and the commission recommend that the legislature make an additional appropriation of $21,649 in order to beautify the grounds. The commissioners consider that the additional appropriation will be necessary to put the grounds in proper shape, and do not apprehend any trouble in getting it.

The plan is to have fine cement walks on the four streets surrounding the building, and a lawn sloping to Washington street with several fountains playing upon it. eral fountains playing upon it.

It was the lamp that came off, though it was attached by three or four thin steel bands. Even after the lamp came off the cars were so nearly together that it was almost impossible for a man to squeeze through.

The negro held on though, until the cars passed. He was then taken off and carried to Dr. Westmoreland's office. Dr. A. S. Johnson dressed the external injuries, none of which are serious in themselves. He was cut and bruised pretty badly, but was well enough to walk home by himself. Dr. Jehnson says that the only probable serious results will be from internal injuries, the character and extent of which it is impossible to tell now.

Never during the last twelve years have the sales of Elegant approximated what they are now. The old maxim 'The Best is the Cheapest,' is fully demonstrated in its use. We believe where a faithful comparison is made, as it has often been made in this city, the economical housekeeper will decide in favor of Elegant. The present immense sales of this flour, which is sold on a closer margin than any other in the market, seems to demonstrate its superlative excellence. Order a barrel in wood if convenient. HENRY JOHNSON KILLED.

A WATCHMAN ON THE W. AND A. IS KILLED BY A G. P. TRAIN.

He Lives About Five Hours and Dies at His Home on Magnolia Street-He Has Been a Railroad Man for Many Years, and Was at One Time on the Atlanta Police Force.

Henry Johnson, the well-known Western and Atlantic vard watchman, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon by a Georgia Pacific

Mr. Johnson has been a railroad man for many years, and was for two years. a member of the Atlanta police force. The facts in the case, as stated by an eyewitness, are as follows: About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Johnson was standing just in the rear of a stationary freight car on the Georgia Pacific track, near he Emma street crossing.

A Georgia Pacific engine was switching ears, going past Johnson on the track next to the one on which he was standing. The en gine, after passing Johnson, was switched off to the track on which the unfortunate man was standing. It came down the track towards Johnson, picking up a freight car on When the moving car was forty or fifty feet from Johnson it was uncoupled from the engine. The car kept rolling until it struck the car against which Johnson was

The watchman was knocked down, and before he could get entirely off the track the rear trucks had rolled over both feet. The left foot was cut off almost entirely, and the toes and a onsiderable portion of the right foot.

The wounded man was picked up and carried at once to his home, 105 Magnolia street. Dr. G. G. Roy and Dr. J. M. Gaston dressed the wounds and waited with Johnson until he died, about five hours afterward.

It is believed that death was the result of internal injuries, as several ribs were either broken or detached from the spine.

Mr. Johnson was forty-one years of age, and has been in Atlanta all his life. He has been a railroad man for years, and about eight years ago ago was on the police force. Afterwards he drove the dog wagon, and for the last three years has been, most of the time, at least, watchman in the Western and Atlantic yard. He leaves a wife and three children, all

There is a story in that suit. The complainant sets forth that on the 28th of March he called at the office of Jackson & Jackson to pay some rent. Just as he was eady to come out of the room he was met by Mr. Tom Cobb Jackson, who advanced on him in a very threatening manner, struck him with his fist, knocked him down and otherwise maltreated him. He says that when he tried to get out of the room Mr. Jackson struck him and knocked him down stairs, bruising his

"Well, he came into our lot and thrashed one of our horses with a carriage whip, and when one of the boys asked him to desist he paid no heed to it."

"So you got even with him?"

"I had been looking around for him several days and had talked pretty rough to his brother, by mistake—two of them you know, both down-easters—and when I met him there in the office I demanded an apology."

"And he would not give one?"

"He refused to sign one that I had written out, and I told him that unless he did I would thrash him. He replied that if he had to be

"He hit the stairs?"

"No, he did not touch the stairs, but he landed at the foot of the steps in a twinkling."

"You feel justified in the act?"

"Yes, most certainly. He refused the satisfaction demanded and accepted the consequences."

LADIES' MISSIONARY WORK

The Central Committee of the Baptist Church Holds a Meeting.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon the entral committee on missions, of the Baptist church for the state of Georgia, held a very interesting meeting at the pastor's study, of the First Baptist church.

The meeting was to get ready for the annual neeting in Marietta, which occurs April 26. There was a grand attendance, last evening, Mrs. Harvey Hatcher presiding in the absence of the president. Mrs. M. E. Wilson, corresponding secretary, reported a large increase in ponding secretary, reported a large increase in contributions over the previous year.

After the first meeting, a second session was called at the association of the Baptist Orphan's home; and a committee consisting of Mrs. B. F. Abbott, Mrs. J. H. James, Mrs. M. L. Harris and Mrs. M. E. Wilson, was appointed to confer with Hon. Jonathan Norcross, in reference to movements relating to the occupying, by the association, of the grounds donated by Mr. Norcross, to the association.

A large sum of money and a fine lot of bed clothing was reported as having been donated by the women of Georgia for the benefit of the home.

Mrs. B. F. Abbott tendered her resignation as president of the association, which was reluctantly accepted by the members.

Mrs. Henry McDonald was elected unanimously to fill the vacancy for the ensuing year, and the weather adjacenced. and the meeting adjourned.

But this is a matter that does not interest us, as neither of the gentlemen mentioned are telephone subscribers. What we wish is for are telephone subscribers. What we wish is for every business man in Atlanta to become a telephone subscriber. Telephones are cheap compared with their great value, and any one trying to do business and not availing themselves of this mode of communication are doing h mselvers and injury. Telephones are valuable for fire alarms, to call for police or physicians, It is worth as much as a servant in any house for convenience,

It can be depended on day and night. It will not worry you one-tenth as much to do your merketing over the 'phone as to write notes or send verbal messages. The merchauts can always please their customers when they can speak with them over the telephone, and if they do not it is an easy matter to rectify any error.

customers when they can speak with them over the telephone, and if they do not it is an easy matter to rectify any error.

Consider the use of the telephone for all purposes, and you cannot fail to acknowledge its worth is far more than its cost. The cost is small as can be to justify the many improvements that are being added from time to time. It would be impossible to make a rate that would suit everyone, as there are some who have no need for one, and it would be dear at any price. It is only those who need them that we misten subscribing. Now is the time to subscribe, and do not delay. We can take your order and put your name and number on the list and put up the phone any time during the mouth. No charge is made until the phones are up and ready for use. Telephone 3.9.
